ALABASTINE

THE ONLY DURABLE WALL FINISH.

Please Read the Following Testimonial as to its Merits:
SALT LAKE CITY, February 8th, 1886

Messrs. Sears & Liddle:

GENTLEMEN—It gives me pleasure to comment on the superior work you are now doing with the cement from Alabaster rock, called Alabastine. The effects produced by it are very brilliant in painting, such as Gypsum, Freezing, etc. And I do conscientiously recommend the article as being one of the best improvements ever offered to the trade or public.

I can always afford to guarantee my work done with this material, so that I am fully satisfied with it, and would recommend it to all fellow workmen.

Respectfully,
W. C. MORRIS,
The Painter.

Trade Ranges Dull During the Week.

ORE AND BULLION RECEIPTS.

D. & R. G. Jumps—Legal Decisions—The Week's Output—the Brooklyn-Bannock.

The excessive heat of the past week has had its effect upon trade, which has ranged rather dull. No quotations of local securities are recorded.

Local speculators are mourning that they did not buy D. & R. G. before the reorganization. The stock jumped $10 next day.

Recent Legal Decisions.

AGREEMENT TO ARBITRATE—PENDING SUIT.—An agreement to submit to arbitration, with a stipulation for an award and a judgment thereon, will not operate to discontinue a pending suit, according to the decision of the Supreme Court of Michigan in the case of Callinan vs. The Port Huron & Northwestern Railway Company.

ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS—OMISSION FROM SCHEDULE.—Where a debtor who makes a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors omitted from the schedule attached thereto a right of redemption which he had in certain premises conveyed by him to secure a debt, the Supreme Court of Georgia held (McMillan vs. Knapp et al.) that the omission was fatal to the assignment.

PROMISSORY NOTE—RELEASE OF PRINCIPAL—SURETY'S LIABILITY.—A suit brought upon a note against a principal debtor was dismissed at his solicitation and he afterwards became insolvent. The Supreme Court of Tennessee held (Pinkerton vs. Pinkerton) that the surety on the note should be released from liability, assuming that the money could have been made out of the principal if the suit had been prosecuted to final judgment.

Ore and Bullion.

The ore and bullion received at the various banks in this city for the week ending Saturday July 17, 1886, amounted to $195,096.99, against $184,644.19 for the week past. They were reported as follows:

By McCormick & Co.:

The Bannock Hoarding.

Mr. M. C. Thum, secretary of the Bannock Company, has returned to Salt Lake, after a somewhat extended absence, during which he has been watching the progress of the work on the mill, and looking after the interests of the company in other particulars. He says the masons are now busy at work on the retaining walls; the frame of the building has already been put together and it was expected that raising would commence yesterday. He is satisfied that the new mill will be in operation by the 1st of October, and says the company has enough ore on hand, running as high as 100 ounces to the ton, to keep the twenty stamps of the mill pounding for a year to come. A cross cut of the vein on the 10-foot level discloses a body of good milling ore thirty feet in width. Five car loads of the machinery for the mill are already on the ground and more is on the way. Altogether, the Bannock is booming, and the stockholders consider they have reasons to feel elated over the prospects.

The Deepest Mine in Bingham Canyon.

Enron's Engineering and Mining Journal:

Sir: In your Salt Lake notes, issue of July 3d, your correspondent says: "The deepest point reached has been by the English New Last Chance Company, which has just tapped the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet," etc. As a matter of fact, the Brooklyn Lead Mining Company, of Bingham, has reached a depth of 1,300 feet, and is still going deeper with excellent prospects.

HENRY W. KNIGHT, president.

Journal 10th.

Speaking of the Brooklyn, the company have paid the $5,000, which a jury gave James Trihey, and that gentleman left for the Emerald Isle yesterday with all his money, minus the sum Messrs. Dickson & Varian supposedly deducted for winning it for him. The cost to the Brooklyn was about $7,500, the odd $2,500 being for lawyers fees and costs of appeal.

Something appears to be wrong with this stock. It has steadily been on the decline for some time past, mainly owing to the dearth of satisfactory news from the mine. A block was offered at 20 cents during the week.

A Mysterious Death.

A Kansas City, Mo., telegram of July 10th, to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, says: A mysterious case of murder or suicide—which it is cannot yet be determined—was reported from Kansas City, Kan., about noon to-day. It appears that at an early hour this morning, Mr. and Mrs. Halpin, a couple living on James Street, near the police station, had a serious quarrel, and the woman was assaulted by her husband with a skillet. Her head was cut and she was badly bruised as the result of the blows she had received, but her injuries were not such as to have caused death. Soon after committing the assault upon his wife, Halpin left the house, and has not been seen since 4 o'clock a.m. Between 11 and 12 Mrs. Halpin was visited by a neighbor named Mrs. McCarthy, to whom she detailed the story of her sufferings from the continued ill-treatment of her husband, and said she had determined to obtain a divorce. Then she asked Mrs. McCarthy to go to a neighboring grocery store and get her some potatoes for dinner. This the woman consented to do, and left Mrs. Halpin sitting on a chair in the front room of her house. On returning a few minutes afterward she was found lying on the floor of the back room, and during the interval she had either died or been killed. There was no blood on her face or body, and nothing specially indicative of violence. She had not been dead long, however, when her face and neck began to be covered with black spots, and this was at first supposed to be evidence of strangulation. What was actually the cause of her death remains a mystery. No one is known to have entered the house between the time Mrs. McCarthy left the house and returned, and her husband could not have been there without being seen by some of the neighbors, all of whom were indignant at the woman's story of his continuous cruelty toward her. A doctor who was called in gave it as his opinion that the woman died from natural causes superinduced probably from the action of the shock to which she had been exposed. But investigation and a post-mortem will be necessary to establish whether or not this is the case. Halpin, who was night watchman at Armour's packing-house, but has been for some time out of work, was last seen walking in the direction of the Hannibal railroad bridge. At 2:40 this afternoon the police were informed of the capture of Halpin. He was found in the southwestern part of this city.

SELLING THE FARM.

The Dakota Way of Bringing Out the Good Points of the Country.

A young man near Estelline was recently negotiating to sell his farm when his father, an old settler in the Territory, came to him and said:

"William, tryin' to sell this land of yours?"

"Yes, father."

"Eastern spec'later?"

"Believe so."

"What are you tellin' him?"

"Good land, big crops, well watered and all that kind of thing."

"That's very good, William, as far as it goes. Why not have indications of silver on the further corner?"

"It might be a good thing."

"What's the matter of havin' seen specks of ore in the creek?"

"Perhaps it would be best."

"I s'pose it never occurred to you that there was signs of oil all over this hul place?"

"Don't believe I did."

"Didn't think to tell him 'bout strikin' coal when you dug yer well?"

"No."

"Not a word concernin' the water-power down on the stream or the splen-did buildin' stum in that knoll?"

"N-o-o, father, I guess not."

"Probably forgot to mention you was sellin' to get money to support a poor old crippled mother?"

"I believe I did."

"William, I'm afraid all the teaching yer poor old father has give you hasn't amounted to much. Now you just crawl under the house and lay low and when that eastern man shows up this afternoon you jest keep yer ears open and find out 'bout the good puts of your own farm. I'll sling a few nines round promis'cus like and you see if I don't down him for an extra thousand."—Estelline (L. T.) Bell.

Noble People Who Eat.

Another French nobleman, who calls himself the Marquis Croiset, is famed through the town on account of his appetite. He has lived in New York now about six years, and he and his amiable spouse do nothing but eat. They are as plump as two overfed partidges. For a time the pair lived at the Gilsey House at an expense of $20 a day for rooms alone. Then they took apartments at the Fifth Avenue, half a block from Delmonico's. They have been there ever since. They eat day and night at the various restaurants. I was told a short time ago by a gentleman connected with the diplomatic service that the wife of Croiset was the daughter of a rich Philadelphia druggist who lived in Paris ten or twelve years after her father's death, and then returned here as the companion of Croiset. They are decidedly mysterious. —Amos J. Cummings in Philadelphia Press.
